Not that long ago, the letters to the editor section was one of the most vibrant and seemingly best read parts of the Newton TAB. During my more than a decade there the biggest struggle for editors was finding a way to fit all of that week's correspondence into two pages, along with a seemly endless flood of requests to submit oped columns from various community members.

Is it true that no one writes letters to the TAB anymore ...

No one has ever responded to one of these letters, and despite prevailing wisdom, the mere act of letter writing doesn't seem to have any healing effect for me. Maybe it soothes for a week or two, up until the point where I start hearing crickets and experience that silence as another emotional blow.
